Quantum Optics and Quantum Computation

This book studies the application of quantum mechanics to some of the most current and notable concepts in the area, such as quantum optics, cryptography, teleportation, and computing. Written as a complete and comprehensive course text, this book works through mathematically rigorous material using a clear and practical approach that facilitates student engagement, and highlights the fundamental principles of quantum physics used to develop quantum computing. Emphasising the mathematical and theoretical treatments appropriate for undergraduate and postgraduate students, this book offers a simple step by step explanation of Quantum Computing and Quantum Optics, appropriate for courses in those subjects, their students, and engineers. Part of IOP Series in Advances in Optics, Photonics and Optoelectronics.

A "Summary" section follows, starting with: "In Herbert Butterfield's famous book The origins of modern science (1300-1800) (New York, 1956), there is a chapter entitled 'The postponed scientific revolution in chemistry.' The title refers to the fact that the new chemistry associated with the oxygen theory of Antoine Lavoisier did not emerge until the 1770s and 1780s, a century after Newton's Principia had put the capstone on the Scientific Revolution of the seventeenth century. It is also significant that Lavoisier's contemporaries were conscious of and frequently mentioned a 'revolution' that was occurring in chemistry, and that Lavoisier himself stated in 1773, in a private memorandum, that he believed the experiments he was undertaking would 'bring about a revolution in...". The screenshot shows the Project Gutenberg eBook page for 'WOOD BETONY'. The page contains the following text:

Government and virtues.] Water Betony is an hero or Jupiter in Cancer, and is appropriated more to wounds and hurts in the breast than wood betony, which follows: It is an excellent remedy for sick hogs. It is of a cleansing quality. The leaves bruised and applied are effectual for all old and filthy ulcers; and especially if the juice of the leaves be boiled with a little honey, and dipped therein, and the sores dressed therewith; as also for bruises and hurts, whether inward or outward. The distilled water of the leaves is used for the same purpose; as also to bathe the face and hands spotted or blemished, or discoloured by sun burning.

I confess I do not much fancy distilled waters, I mean such waters as are distilled cold; some virtues of the herb they may haply have (it were a strange thing else;) but this I am confident of, that being distilled in a pewter still, as the vulgar and apish fashion is, both chemical oil and salt is left behind unless you burn them, and then all is spoiled, water and all, which was good for as little as can be, by such a distillation.

WOOD BETONY.

Descripr.] COMMON or Wood Betony has many leaves rising from the root, which are somewhat broad and round at the end, roundly dented about the edges, standing upon long foot stalks, from among which rise up small, square, slender, but upright hairy stalks, with some leaves thereon to a piece at the joints, smaller than the lower, whereon are set several spiked heads of flowers like Lavender, but thicker and shorter for the most part, and of a reddish or purple colour, spotted with white spots both in the upper and lower part. The seeds being contained within the husks that hold the flowers, are blackish, somewhat long and uneven. The roots are many white thready strings: the stalks perish, but the roots with some leaves thereon, abide all the Winter. The whole plant is somewhat small. [22]

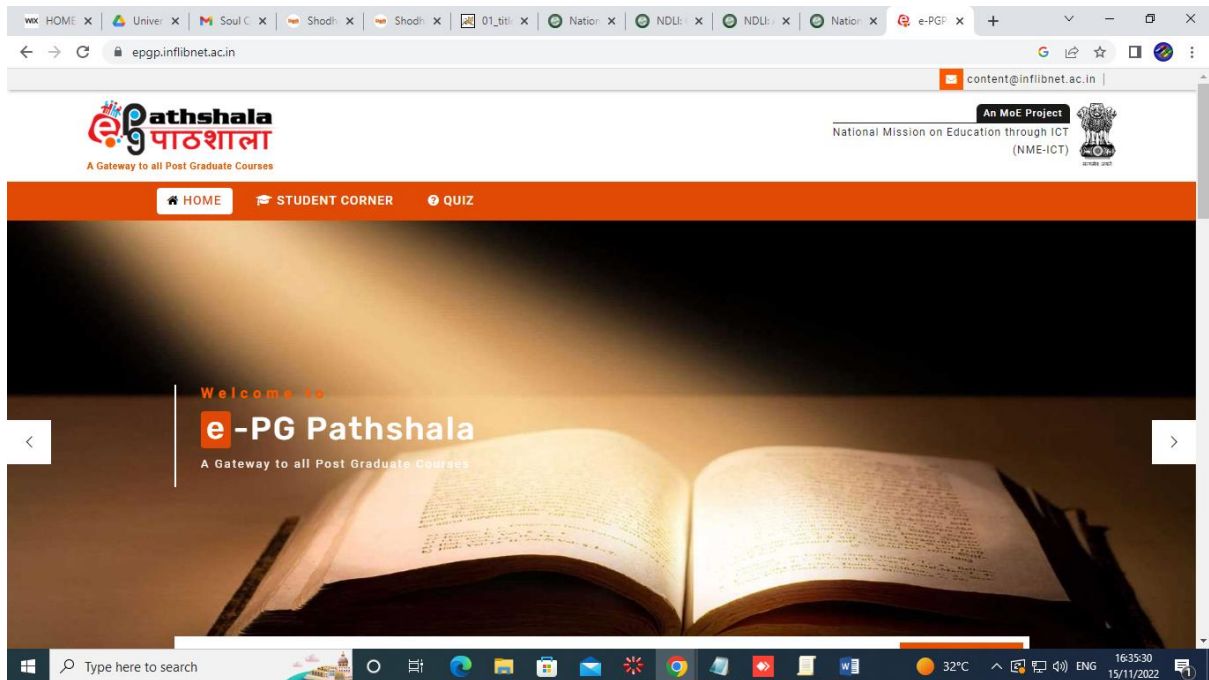

Place.] It grows frequently in woods, and delights in shady places.

Time.] And it flowers in July; after which the seed is quickly ripe, yet in its prime in May.

Government and virtues.] The herb is appropriated to the planet Jupiter, and the sign Aries. Antonius Musa, physician to the Emperor Augustus Cæsar, wrote a peculiar book of the virtues of this herb; and among other virtues saith of it, that it preserves the liver and bodies of men from the danger of epidemical diseases, and from witchcraft also; it helps those that loath and cannot digest their meat, those that have weak stomachs and sour belchings, or continual rising in their stomachs, using it familiarly either green or dry; either the herb, or root, or the flowers, in broth, drink, or meat, or made into conserve, syrup, water, electuary, or powder, as every one may best frame themselves unto, or as the time and season requires; taken any of the aforesaid ways, it helps the jaundice, falling sickness, the palsy, convulsions, or shrinking of the sinews, the gout and those that are inclined to dropsy, those that have continual pains in their heads, although it turn to phrensy. The powder mixed with pure honey is no less available for all sorts of coughs or colds, wheezing, or shortness of breath, distillations of thin rheum upon the lungs, which causes consumptions. The decoction made with Mead, and a little Pennyroyal, is good for those that are troubled with putrid agues, whether quotidian, tertian, or quartan, and to draw down and evacuate the blood and humours, that by falling into the eyes, do hinder the sight; the decoction thereof made in wine and taken, kills the worms in the belly, opens obstructions both of the spleen and liver, cures stitches, and pains in the back and sides, the torments and griping pains in the bowels, and the wind cholick; and mixed with honey purges the belly, helps to bring down women's courses, and is of special use for those that are troubled with the falling down of the mother, and pains thereof, and causes an easy and speedy delivery of women in child-birth. It helps also to break and expel the stone, either in the bladder or kidneys. The decoction with wine gargled in the mouth, eases the tooth-ache. It is commended against the stinging and biting of venomous serpents, or mad dogs, being used inwardly and applied outwardly to the place. A dram of the powder of Betony taken with a little honey in some vinear, does wonderfully refresh those that are over

NISCAIR: - <http://www.niscair.res.in/>

The National Institute of Science Communication and Information Resources, located at New Delhi, India, was an information science institute in India founded in 2002. The institute published several academic journals and magazines.

Online Periodicals Available On NISCAIR

The decision to establish National Science Library (NSL) was taken by CSIR in June 1963 and accordingly it started from National Physical Laboratory (NPL) building.

You can now access full-text articles from research journals published by CSIR-NISCAIR Full text facility is provided for all research journals

Title: Study of ferroelectric phase transition and dielectric properties of one dimensional hydrogen bonded crystals

Authors: Rawat, Aanchal
Upadhyay, Trilok Chandra

Keywords: Ferroelectrics;Lead hydrogen arsenate;Green's function;Dielectric constant;Phase transition

Issue Date: Mar-2020

Publisher: NISCAIR-CSIR, India

Abstract: The third- and fourth-order phonon anharmonic interaction terms and spin-lattice interactions have been considered in the two-sublattice pseudospin-lattice coupled mode model for explaining ferroelectric transition and dielectric properties of lead hydrogen arsenate (a one-dimensional hydrogen bonded ferroelectric). Using
