ABOUT THE COURSE

This project provides opportunities to the teachers of displaced learners, students studying Social Work, people working with NGOs, and anyone who is directly in contact with internally displaced learners 13-19 years of age. A key theme is to focus on the fact that developing employability skills should form a fundamental part of a child's education.

This limited series of podcasts will empower the teachers to modify and improve their course content and pedagogical knowledge. It enables them to develop thinking skills among learners and makes them aware of varied employment avenues.

This course will be delivered through four modules, comprising 16 episodes of podcasts. The limited series discuss skills in demand, employability requirements, employment avenues in varied sectors, and strategies that can be adopted by teachers. The podcasts are generic and foundational that are not applicable to a specific course of study, profession, and or country. Guest speakers of different professional backgrounds have been invited who are either located in India or Australia. Some of the guests work in global organizations and the health sector and are business owners as well. They have helped us to identify the skills required in their fields. Also, experienced teachers have been invited who share their pedagogies, will educate, and guide the teachers teaching displaced learners as they might not have adequate resources to do so. And to wrap up, we have an NGO founder who has validated this gap and expressed the need for the podcast.

This first episode is an introduction to the course, its relevance, and the target group. These podcasts are categorized into 4 modules. Module 1 focuses on education and employability. Five episodes of the first module, episodes 2 to 5 discuss developing four skills: critical thinking, creativity, collaboration, and communication skills. Episode 6 provides information on the requirements of employability, skills in demand, and possible employment avenues in different sectors. The second module focuses on health and wellness. Six episodes of the second module, modules 7 to 12 discuss self-protection from injuries and diseases, career avenues in the health sector, promoting well-being, and career avenues in the fitness and sports industry. In the third module, episodes 13 and 14 discuss preserving the environment and various avenues in eco-friendly areas. In the fourth module, episode 15 provides all the relevant information about setting up your own business. The last episode would be the wrap-up of all episodes.

One can listen to Developing Employability Skills episodes on OER Commons, Spotify, Apple, Google, and Stitcher. Connect with us on Facebook and Instagram by searching for developing employability skills with Poonam.
