Financial Education for SHG - Journey towards Smart Money Manager

OE4BW Initiative 2020-21

SDG 5: GENDER EQUALITY

FINANCIAL EDUCATION FOR SHG - JOURNEY TOWARDS SMART MONEY MANAGER

ABOUT THE COURSE

The position of women over the last few decades have improved significantly with the attainment of economic independence. Economic freedom of women helps not only to curb violence streaks but contributes equally to the economy by reducing gender and income inequalities. The advocacy of Self-Help Group Linkage Programs is one such means of making women, even in the backward communities of the country economically independent. With the positive force on the part of the various government and non-governmental organizations, the cumulative progress of SHG in India is spectacular. As of 31st March 2019, more than 69,00,000 SHG covering 12 crore families in rural areas were registered. But the sustenance of these groups is questionable. The average working life of an SHG is mere 3-4 years. The vast segment of these groups though financially included in the ecosystem; financial literacy remains at the brink. Further, these groups are self-governed by women of similar socio-economic backgrounds who have been rarely streamlined into formal education, hitching sustainability. The only training, they have received is the experience of managing their household chores. In other words, they are homemakers with no educational background turned into entrepreneurs. The major glitch they confront is the poor understanding of financial concepts and their application in the business. With naïve commercial ventures coupled with the poor financial decision in terms of sources of income, sources of availing loans, investments, maintaining financial records, analyzing cost-benefit ratios, considering inflation effects, etc. have led to their downfall in the long run. Therefore, the need to financially educate these women is imperative. Efforts have been taken by the policymakers to inculcate financial education amongst the SHG through its nodal agencies but have failed to pin down at the grass-root level. Also, the content developed follows the mantra, “One size fit’s all”, lacking customization to suit the diverse needs of SHG’s spread geographically and socially.

To overcome this lacuna, the course shall adopt ADDIE training model i.e (Analyze, Design, Development, Implementation, and Evaluation) to suit the peculiar needs of SHG's in rural areas of the Palghar district. The district is the hometown to the largest tribal community in the entire division with 52% of its population living in rural areas. To ensure financial literacy especially amongst the women in this backward region is the need of an hour.

The course intends to bridge the financial knowledge gap by exposing them to various financial concepts and their application in the life cycle. Building a new home wherein each woman is a smart money manager who shall evaluate the various alternatives before making a decision remains the primary objective. The course bargains them with an informed decision-making capacity to sustain the various hiccups of the financial excursion. The course outcome would be assessed in terms of ascertaining their financial literacy rate pre- and post-training program. Further to ensure the accessibility and inculcation of the course, it shall be adapted into three common languages of the country – English, Hindi, and Marathi along with apt pedagogy.

SUMMARY REPORT

The course on Self-Help Groups (Bachat Gat) and Basic Financial Concepts provided a comprehensive exploration of the formation, management, and financial aspects of self-help groups. The thematic structure allowed students to understand the procedural, bookkeeping, and financial knowledge required for successful self-help group operations. The course facilitator Prof. Mahesh Deshmukh skillfully coordinated the online learning experience, ensuring students gained a comprehensive experience.

The review lectures provided students with a thorough understanding of the formation and management of self-help groups, as well as essential bookkeeping and financial concepts. Through these sessions, students were encouraged to engage critically with the material and recognize the practical applications of the knowledge gained. The interactive nature of the reviews fostered a deeper appreciation of the importance of self-help groups and financial literacy in promoting sustainable economic practices.
