NCC Activities 2020-21

Report on Blood donation

1. Title of the Activity/Event/Practice

Blood donation

2. Objectives of the Practice

- To save the lives of individuals who require blood transfusions due to various medical conditions such as cancer, blood disorders, accidents, and surgeries.
- To meet the demand for blood, which is always high in hospitals and blood banks.

3. The Context

An initiative by Rural Hospital

4. Practice

Blood donation is a crucial part of the healthcare system that significantly depends on willing donations from healthy people. Red blood cells, plasma, and platelets—all of which can be utilized to treat various medical conditions—are routinely processed and isolated from donated blood during processing.

Cadets go through a screening process and satisfy certain eligibility standards, such as being in excellent health, being of a certain age, not having a particular medical condition, the proper amount of haemoglobin. Cadets who met the criterion donated their blood to a noble cause. On the occasion Medical staff and medical officers of RH were present.

5. Outcomes

- Saving lives by donating blood is used to treat a variety of medical conditions and injuries, including anaemia, cancer, surgery, and trauma.
- Increased blood supply by donating blood.
- Community building by bringing people together around a common cause, fostering a sense of community and collective action.
